Washington, Oct. 27.—President Taft continued his campaign for farmers' co-operative banks and agricultural credits today by making reply to letters that have reached the White house intimating that the plan would benefit only the big farmers. The president quoted from the report of Ambassador Herrick statistics showing the business done by the Raiffelsen banks of Germany.

Average Deposit Is $870. "The size of the average deposit for these institutions is around $370," said the president. "The average loan they make amounts to only $150 and the membership of the Raiffelsen banks average 95 farmers. It is plainty evident from these figures that this process with a farmers plan In my ly evident from these figures that this is not a 'hig farmers' plan. In my letter to the governors the first recommendation which I made is for the adoption of some such form of cooperative credit.

Works Well in Springfield.

"On the contrary, the adoption of co-operative credit in this country will be of great advantage to the small farmer. It was in the interest of the peasant farmer of Europe that this plan was established. Massachusetts already has a law permitting the establishment of co-operative societies of this type. Under this law the Myrick credit union of Springfield, Massa, the peasant farmer is the more several different form so co-operative societies of which I have just spoken, for instance, are quite different from the mortisage bond societies which are designed for larger loans for far long-tender of the letters which I have received, or the letters which I have been able to read, far to read all of them would force me to give up all other work, shows, that the people are seriously studying the question. It is a question that requires serious study. There are several different forms of co-operative societies of which I have just spoken, for instance, are quite different form several different form several different forms of co-operative societies of which I have just sudying the question. It is a question that requires se plan was established. Massachusetts already has a law permitting the establishment of co-operative societies of this type. Under this law the Myrick credit union of Springfield, Mass., was organized, I think in 1992, and twelve months it had 105 members, a capital of $3,000 and $10,000 of outstanding loans. Interest Low, Yet Makes Profit.

The results obtained by the adoption of this form of co-operative credit in Germany speak plainly enough of its usefulness. There is one bank for every 1600 of population in Germany. The rates of interest charged is frequently a point or two lower than in commercial circles, yet the banks make a fair profit, which, in the case of the Raiffelsen banks is all carried over as a reserve fund, so that each year these banks are strengthening.
